

ANOTHER RENDITION

Chas. D. Herrman and the Ward Company to Play Monday

It has become the habit to criticize Manager Piper of McKissick's Opera House for bringing trashy farces to Reno instead of the better class of plays. Those who were present at the rendition of Othello last evening will bear witness to the fact that Mr. Piper has simply been catering to the moral and intellectual tastes of our people. Renoites prefer horse play to art. Their desires are for tights and clowns and plays in which the villain is still pursuing her.

These criticisms are drawn forth by reason of the poor crowd that witnessed Chas. D. Herrman and the Ward Company in the immortal Othello. It was a splendid interpretation of the great drama. Nothing to excel it, even the popular James' renditions, have been seen in Reno in years.

Tomorrow night there will be an opportunity for Renoites to redeem themselves and witness the presentation of a clever French historical play, "Gaston Cadol," a story of the Revolution. It is a beautiful love tale, abounding in heart interest.

If space permitted the plot of the story would be given here, but it is so simple and yet so thrilling and absorbing in its simplicity that the audience will easily be able to follow the development and progress of the story. Get your seats early.

This is a fine aggregation of actors and actresses, each one a star in his or her part, but especial mention is due to Mr. Francis McGinnis, who last night portrayed the part of Iago, the villain. He is an actor of great ability, having a fine voice and stage emotion.

Old Horse Sale

The Wells Fargo Express Company held its "Old Horse" sale yesterday in this city. There were a large number of people present at the auction and the bidding was very lively. A number of purchasers realized handsomely on their investment.

Illustrated Lecture

Dr. Church of the State University, assisted by C. B. Fitzmorris, gave a stereopticon lecture Friday afternoon before the Virginia City high school. His theme was, "My Trip Through Italy."

They All Spend Money

Every little helps in the prosperity of Reno. The making of Reno a division point for mail clerks has been of considerable assistance. At present 16 clerks are running out of here westward and 53 eastward.

Hot noon lunches at the J. J. Beckers Saloon.

How Reno may be made a Thriving Metropolis

Ever since the government began work on its surveys for irrigation canals and storage reservoirs the town of Reno has been overrun with men in leather leggings. Hydrographer Taylor has many men under his direction at present. The amount that has been already spent in survey work would make a very pretty figure, but it is only a drop in the bucket compared with what will be expended in this vicinity for the dams, canals and ditches.

Nearly all of this huge sum, reaching into the millions, will be paid for labor and the bulk of it will pass into the hands of business men and citizens generally. No wonder that Reno has cause for rejoicing.

This advantage will, it is conceded, be but a temporary one, yet the resultant benefits from the government irrigation plan will be forever. Before the money expended on construction work has ceased circulating the colonists will begin to come in. Homes will be erected everywhere all over the fertile valleys north of town. These valleys now grow sagebrush of immense size, a shrub that flourishes only in the very best of soil.

When the tide of water flows through the canals and ditches and assuages the thirst of the soil the sagebrush will give place to blossoming alfalfa and waving fields of grain.

Fruit trees will grow on the sun kissed plains and many thousands of people will enjoy the benefaction of nature and of Uncle Sam. Isn't this a picture to be painted upon the mind's eye canvass of every progressive Renoite? This city will be a trading point for all the district watered by the diverted waters of the Truckee. Villages will spring up in each of these valleys, but all will be but suburban to this city.

There is but one thing to mar the prospect and that is the possible greed of private landholders in the district effected by the proposed national irrigation. The whole scheme will fail unless the landowners agree to parcel out their holdings to actual settlers. In case they lack the business sagacity to do this the government will abandon its present plans and will carry the stored water past Reno and distribute it over the vast tracts of land in the vicinity of the Carson Sink. The landowners would then not only lose an opportunity for improving their own finances by disposing of the parceled lands, but these few men would forever blight the prospects of this young and promising city.

These fears are doubtless groundless. The Journal is positive that not one of the holders of tracts of land in the districts effected by the proposed system of irrigation but will come to the front in a sagacious and patriotic manner and offer to abide by the requirements laid down by the United States government, which is working for the greatest good to not only the greatest number, but to all.

PERSONAL MENTION

Attorney H. R. Cooke left for Carson yesterday morning on legal business.

Leon S. Mayer of San Francisco is visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Harriet Lachman.

Joseph Galvin of Reno has gone to Wadsworth and entered the employ of the Southern Pacific Company as fireman.

W. J. Biggins, the well known Humboldt county politician and saloon man, returned to Winnemucca last night on the flir.

Justice Court and Jail

The town will soon possess a better lockup than the old calaboose that at present is a disgrace to the place. The Burke brick building on Center street will be used for this purpose and also for a justice court.

All Are Invited

Seriously Ill

Charles McCullough is seriously ill at the Riverside hotel. His father has been sent for and is expected today.

How they While the hours away

The boys in the fire house have no idle hours. They busy themselves when not running to fires or attending to their routine duties in adding improvements to their quarters.

A fine gymnasium has been rigged up, the latest addition being a frame for their new punching bag.

A new appliance is in course of construction. It is constructed of brass and aluminum and is being built wholly in the machine shop attached to the department. The piece of machinery will automatically register the time when each alarm is rung in and the number of the box. It will thus form a record that will be filed away for future reference. The instrument is not covered by patent and is a novel contrivance.

A Business Trip

S. M. Sample went to Amedee yesterday morning where he will spend a couple of days looking after the interests of the Flanigan Warehouse Co.

A Runaway Car

Friday evening a car loaded with brick broke loose from some point up the line and sailed through the Reno yards at a lively rate. A brakeman boarded it near the cattle corrals and brought it to a halt. No damage was done.

BERKLEY WINS GAME

The Stanford eleven Defeated in the Inter-collegiate Game

Special to The Journal:

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—In one of the cleanest and prettiest football games ever seen here California today defeated Stanford by the score of 16 to 0. Two field goals, a touchdown and a goal made California's points. Stanford was twice within striking distance of California's goal and, after failing to make an impression on their line, both times tried for field goals. Each time California smashed through the line and blocked the kick.

The features of the game were kicking and all round good work by Overall, and a sensational ninety-yard run by Sherman, of California, for a touchdown.

California scored first after about ten minutes of play. On the twenty-yard line a signal was given for a try at goal. The line held true and Overall sent the ball fairly between the posts. The first half ended with a score of 5 to 0.

About the middle of the second half Stanford punted far down the field. Sherman, who was playing very far back, misjudged the ball, which was driven by the wind, and he barely touched it. He recovered the ball quick as a flash and, evading the Stanford ends, started down the field. The entire California team swung into interference and, behind a moving wall, the fast half back ran the length of the field and placed the ball between the posts. Overall kicked the goal.

Ten minutes before the call of time was made there was a second goal from a place kick.

The playing of the two teams was so even in line that neither side could make any considerable gains. California knew more football; her team work was better than that of Stanford's.

Not a single unpleasant feature marred the game. Fourteen thousand people witnessed the contest.

Ores that are Being Purchased in Reno

P. W. Pyne, manager for the Pyne Smelting Works at West Alameda, went below last night after spending three weeks here, during which time he purchased a large quantity of ore, including a consignment of copper ore from near Yerington.

The Pyne Works some time ago worked 20 tons of Wedekind ore for John Sparks and were so well satisfied with the results that they are now negotiating for a large quantity of ore from the Wedekind and Desert King mines. It is a well known fact that these two mines are capable of producing several times the amount of ore that the Sparks mill can handle. This surplus ore will be worked at outside points until such time as the mill is sufficiently enlarged.

The Pyne people settle on very advantageous terms as may be seen by reading their ad in another column. They are willing that mine owners have their ore sampled in this city. If the samples agree with those taken by the company settlements will be made at once and before the ore is shipped from Reno. The Pyne company is perfectly reliable and is desirous of making Reno one of its purchasing points. Mr. Pyne informed The Journal that the ores in the vicinity of Reno are very suitable for mixing for flaxing purposes with ores they are getting from other points.

Attractive Windows

The windows of the John Breuner Company store are most attractive in their new settings. The south window contains some beautiful parlor effects and in the north window is a suite of furniture suitable for a prosperous attorney or a corporation office. The furniture is of quartered golden oak and the upholstery is of genuine horse hide. The magnificent suite may be purchased for about $500.

The State Ticket

At last accounts every candidate on the Fusion State ticket is safely elected, with the exception of Eugene Howell, Secretary of State. Proff. Bray, candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, is sixty-four votes to the bad, but all the precincts to hear from are believed to be strongly Democratic.

The Frisco Letter by Madame On Dit

Written for The Journal

It is a long breath we all draw when we really fully recognize the fact that the election is over and that none of our candidates are the rascals we have tried to make them. Every one, be he Republican or Democrat, is delighted over the election of Judge William Beatty, and very many are regretful over the defeat of John Glasscock to the Judiciary. This is not a party aspect, but Glasscock is a well liked man, known to be honorable and loyal. I saw Judge Beatty the evening following the election, Wednesday evening, and though I spent an hour with him there was not the slightest allusion to politics. He might have been a Kentucky farmer so unruffled, so simple was his bearing. He was at the wedding of the child of an old friend, and it was of early days in Sacramento and Nevada he talked, of his first experience in Carson, of one or two ventures in Nevada and California. He is very tenacious of old friends and of old memories.

A sort of jubilate has gone up over the election in Nevada as far as the Senatorial campaign goes, particularly Francis Newlands has a host of friends in this, his old home, all of whom have watched his campaign with a sincere and affectionate interest.

The Nevada men made a fine showing last Saturday, several of them fighting like veritable demons, but they were over matched. The feeling throughout, save that naturally engendered by actual contest, was kindly and pleasant. Tomorrow, it is said, will see the bitterest fight ever made by the two universities, Stanford and Berkeley. The ruling off of "Locomotive" Smith as a professional, has brought the hot young blood to boiling point, and it would not very much surprise me if it would result in some ugly incidents during the afternoon.

A man whom I often meet on the street, who was connected with the early days of Virginia City in a quiet way, is Cahill. I do not know his first name, but he was a brother of the well known Edward Cahill, of the firm of Eyre & Cahill, and was their confidential clerk and manager during many an excitement when stocks were fluctuating in a way that made men's hair grow gray as it were in a single night. Edward Cahill died a poor man a number of years ago, while Edward Eyre left a solid million, and it is said by a member of his family "owing not one dollar saving the bills of the month during which he died." After the two moved to San Francisco the firm dissolved, and Eyre became Flood's principal broker, while Cahill followed in the train of William Ralston, and his fortunes changed with those of the brilliant, but unfortunate, banker. The brother of whom I write has lived on here, but his strength and force all seemed to have gone with "Ned," as he called him.

Another man to whom life has not been kind in recent years, who was in Nevada with Baldwin, and that is W. L. Anderson, one of the early friends of Judge Deal, John Henford and Joe King. Mr. Anderson came to San Francisco with A. P. Crittenden when the latter formed a co-partnership with Lemuel Wilson, and was with them for years, leaving during the White Pine excitement, to which point he finally found his way, bringing up in Austin, where for several terms he was elected to the position of district attorney. After failing of re-election he returned to San Francisco, where he now lives hopeless, unlucky, but always the gentle gentleman, always the unforgetting friend.

In a half-hearted way Marriott is bringing suit against Williams & Truxton for the desperate attack made upon him by them weeks ago, and which has kept him in the hospital ever since, but nothing will come of it and "So say we all of us."

Wonderful and passing strange is thy power, O almighty dollar! Mrs. Payson, the daughter of Senator and the late Mrs. Stewart, will spend some time in Washington with her father. Mrs. Hooker, the eldest daughter, will be in New York. She will go abroad in February.

There is some rumor afloat concerning the engagement of Denis Searles, formerly of Nevada. Whether it be true or not I do not know. But he is a popular, very merry fellow, and a girl whom he would woo would have to be pretty obdurate to continue saying no.

At a brilliant dinner of a semi-political aspect given quite recently, one of the toasts which met with the readiest of responses was Francis Newlands for his far-sightedness in regard to Hawaii.

Judge Estee and his wife have made pleasant positions for themselves in their new home and all have the kindly word for them.

The week has been filled to overflowing with gaieties of every kind and description, luncheons, dinners, dances and weddings. The most important of the latter was that of Miss Margaret Salisbury to Mr. Danforth Boardman, at St. Stephens Church. Miss Salisbury is the daughter of Monroe Salisbury of the well known old firm of Gilmer & Salisbury, whose stage lines but a few years ago were known over the entire West. Nevada, Utah, Montana, Idaho, California, Oregon and Arizona were threaded with Gilmer & Salisbury's lines, but the day of stages is past and there are very few sadder or more deserted looking places in the whole country than the hundreds of deserted stations, shops, eating houses, stables and blacksmith shops, all, in short, that go towards making up the Western stage line.

It is said that Bob Graves has found a mine. Certainly if effort count for ought he should find something good, for he knows no discouragement and will not give up.

THERE SHOULD BE CLOSER UNION

THE election just held in this State has demonstrated that upon the general issue the forces opposed to the Republican party have a clear majority of from 1500 to 1800—a majority as great, relatively, as 150,000 would be in the State of Ohio. And yet the closeness of the vote in several cases, with the possibility that several of the Fusion candidates have failed to secure any majority, gives renewed emphasis to the necessity for more compact and harmonious organization. All through the campaign The Journal contended that the only hope for the Republicans lay in promoting discord and confusion in the ranks of their opponents, and the results fully sustain The Journal's contention.

As it is usually the case with minority parties, the Republicans were thoroughly united, harmonious and enthusiastic. They held but a single State convention, and, as their chances were desperate, there was no scramble for nominations. They selected the best men available, and there was no friction.

The Fusionists, on the other hand, assembled in two conventions, and while there was a general determination to unite upon a ticket, there were sharp differences of opinion as to the basis upon which the offices should be apportioned, and some feeling was necessarily engendered. It is simply impossible for the members of two separate organizations to co-operate as cordially as if there were but one. The leaders may endeavor in the best of faith to reconcile all differences, but among the rank and file there are bound to be many who will, in voting, differentiate between the candidates of their own party and those of the allied organization. In other words it will take a greater degree of personal antipathy to induce a Democrat to vote against a Democrat on a Fusion ticket than it will to lead him to oppose a Silver party candidate on the same ticket. This is equally true of a Silver party man who may feel a personal dislike for some Democrat on the ticket.

For these reasons a Fusion party is necessarily weaker than the same number of voters would be in a single compact organization.

There is a lesson in this which Democrat and Silver party men should carefully study. All things considered they have had a splendid fight together, and won a great victory. But there is necessarily some loss of strength when two organizations with two sets of leaders and a mixed ticket undertake to act in unison.

The campaign through which the Democratic and Silver parties have just triumphantly passed has brought them into closer touch than they ever were before, and as the fundamental differences between them are very slight it is to be hoped that at no distant day they may be able to form that more "perfect union," which will enable them to throw every unit of their combined strength against the common political foe.

THE REPUBLICAN DILEMMA

OUR Republican friends are still busily engaged in explaining their defeat. All sorts of excuses are offered. Many charge that money was improperly used to influence the result, but others with more fairness, concede that their own position is too vulnerable to justify them in saying much on this line.

Upon one point, however, there seems to be a substantial agreement in Republican circles. This is that the presence of Mr. Stewart, and his actual participation in the campaign as an injury to the Republican cause. In restaurants, at the bars and upon the streets the opinion is freely expressed that if he had remained away the Republican party would have made a better showing. Doubtless there is some ground for this view.

In the present state of public feeling here, Mr. Stewart, considered merely in his personality, is a serious handicap to any party to which he gives his active support. But it does not follow that if he had remained away the Republicans would have won. In fact their claim does not go so far as that. It must be remembered that Mr. Stewart rendered aid which probably more than offset his personal unpopularity. He it is who induced the National Republican Committee to take a hand in Nevada's politics, and along certain lines the effect of this was very potential. It gave to the party a national recognition as well as financial backing which otherwise it could scarcely have obtained.

Unfortunately for Nevada Republicans, Mr. Stewart was about the only strong connecting link between themselves and their national organization. If they could have had Mr. Stewart's aid without his presence or his connection being known, their position would have been considerably strengthened. But the two were inseparable. Stewart has his own insatiable ambition, and he is not the man to help Nevada Republicans unless there is something in it for him. When he kept off the stump he made what was to him a very great sacrifice, for he loves to talk as a duck loves to quack.

As The Journal repeatedly stated during the campaign, there never was the remotest chance for Judge Hawley to win. From the first the baleful shadow of Stewart hung over him, diverting the public mind from the contest of 1902 to that of 1904, when Mr. Stewart will aim to succeed himself. There are not at this time one hundred voters in the State who would vote directly for him, but that circumstance is in no way indicative of what the Republican party will do two years hence. The problem which now confronts the party is how to secure the advantage of the peculiar influence which Mr. Stewart can bring to bear, and at the same time avoid the disadvantage of his obnoxious personality. It is a knotty problem truly.

THE 68TH CONGRESS

IN CONSIDERING the effect of the election upon the political complexion of Congress it must be borne in mind that an off-year election is almost invariably marked by a decrease in the Congressional majorities of the party in power. It is a well-recognized feature of American political history that the party gaining the ascendancy in Congress at a Presidential election experiences losses at the next general election. The result of the contest throughout the country offers no exception to the rule. In the 57th Congress, as organized at its opening session, the Senate comprised fifty-three Republicans and twenty-eight Democrats, seven Senators being of other parties and two seats being vacant. The House numbered 197 Republicans, 152 Democrats and eight Populists. Subsequent changes altered these figures, but on all strict party issues the party of the administration could count upon a majority of forty-one votes.

While later returns may increase or diminish the Republican membership in the House, the results of Tuesday's election, so far as known, indicate that the Republicans will have a reduced but safe majority in the House. Out of the 385 members provided for under the new apportionment it seems reasonably certain that about 200 will be Republicans. The number may run as high as 205. The Republican State Legislatures elected indicate that enough Senators of that party will be elected to maintain the present Republican majority in the Senate.

THE Lovelock Tribune editor, who last week made the claim that Cleveland would carry Nevada by about 3000 majority; that Farrington would get an overwhelming majority, and that Hawley would be elected U. S. Senator, can now explain how it happened.—Wells Herald.

IT IS all over now, including the shouting. Those candidates who tried to make it appear that the people were very much excited have subsided and the world moves on in uneventful calm.

SINCE the Republicans have both houses of Congress again there is no reason why they should not go ahead and do all of those things they promised to do during the campaign.

As The Journal repeatedly stated during the campaign, there never was the remotest chance for Judge Hawley to win. From the first the baleful shadow of Stewart hung over him, diverting the public mind from the contest of 1902 to that of 1904, when Mr. Stewart will aim to succeed himself. There are not at this time one hundred voters in the State who would vote directly for him, but that circumstance is in no way indicative of what the Republican party will do two years hence. The problem which now confronts the party is how to secure the advantage of the peculiar influence which Mr. Stewart can bring to bear, and at the same time avoid the disadvantage of his obnoxious personality. It is a knotty problem truly.

THE 68TH CONGRESS

IN CONSIDERING the effect of the election upon the political complexion of Congress it must be borne in mind that an off-year election is almost invariably marked by a decrease in the Congressional majorities of the party in power. It is a well-recognized feature of American political history that the party gaining the ascendancy in Congress at a Presidential election experiences losses at the next general election. The result of the contest throughout the country offers no exception to the rule. In the 57th Congress, as organized at its opening session, the Senate comprised fifty-three Republicans and twenty-eight Democrats, seven Senators being of other parties and two seats being vacant. The House numbered 197 Republicans, 152 Democrats and eight Populists. Subsequent changes altered these figures, but on all strict party issues the party of the administration could count upon a majority of forty-one votes.

While later returns may increase or diminish the Republican membership in the House, the results of Tuesday's election, so far as known, indicate that the Republicans will have a reduced but safe majority in the House. Out of the 385 members provided for under the new apportionment it seems reasonably certain that about 200 will be Republicans. The number may run as high as 205. The Republican State Legislatures elected indicate that enough Senators of that party will be elected to maintain the present Republican majority in the Senate.

THE Lovelock Tribune editor, who last week made the claim that Cleveland would carry Nevada by about 3000 majority; that Farrington would get an overwhelming majority, and that Hawley would be elected U. S. Senator, can now explain how it happened.—Wells Herald.

IT IS all over now, including the shouting. Those candidates who tried to make it appear that the people were very much excited have subsided and the world moves on in uneventful calm.

SINCE the Republicans have both houses of Congress again there is no reason why they should not go ahead and do all of those things they promised to do during the campaign.

Proposed Railway to Camp of Tonopah

Edward C. Tilton, surveyor and civil engineer, and A. R. Laird, who left Eureka about two weeks ago to examine into two proposed routes for an extension of the Eureka & Fallside railroad from Eureka to Tonopah, returned here Wednesday. On the way to Tonopah they went over the route through Fish creek valley and Hot Creek to Tonopah, and found the distance about 150 miles

Both of these routes were found to be feasible, and a railroad could be built over either without great difficulty or the expenditure of a large amount of capital. It is understood, however, that the latter route is preferable, owing to its being over a much more level country than the route by way of Hot Creek—Eureka Sentinel

Specimens of ore running $2000 to the ton, a large percentage of which is sold, have been brought up from the 100-foot level of the Mispah the past week. One specimen seen by a Tonopah Miner representative was fairly alive with ruby and native silver

CONFESSIONS OF A PRISON

Rev. Jno. S. Cox, of Wake, Ark., writes, "For 12 years I suffered from Yellow Jaundice. I consulted a number of physicians and tried all sorts of medicines, but got no relief. Then I began the use of Electric Bitters, and feel that I am now cured of a disease that had me in its grasp for twelve years." If you want a reliable medicine for liver and kidney troubles, stomach disorder or general debility, get Electric Bitters. It's guaranteed by S. J. Hodgkinson. Only 50c.

RAN A TEN PENNY NAIL RIGHT THROUGH HIS HAND.

While opening a box, J. C. Mount, of Three Mile Bay, N. Y., ran a ten penny nail through the fleshy part of his hand. "I thought at once of all the pain and soreness this would cause me," he says, "and immediately applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm and occasionally afterwards. To my surprise it removed all pain and soreness and the injured parts were soon healed." For sale by S. J. Hodgkinson.

THE LEADING INDUSTRY

Mining News of Nevada Told by the State Exchanges

A strike of high-grade silver-lead ore is reported in the Fortuna mine, Jack-rabbit district, Lincoln county

Several miners are to be put to work in the Star mine hauling ore from the Olympia gold mine to the Star mill

Developments the past week at Pilot Knob have been more than of the most encouraging nature. Over twenty-five feet of almost solid sulphide ore, carrying from 15 to 20 per cent copper, has been opened up

The Quartette Mining company, operating at Searchlight, Lincoln county, reports a net bullion yield for the quarter ended September 30th of $11,733, the taxes on which is $375

Frank Juncy, superintendent of construction at Bamberg's De Lamar mines, came up from the south yesterday much pleased with the progress of his part of the campaign—Tribune

The Rocco-Homestake mine at Hamilton, Nevada, has marketed over 1,000 tons of high-grade ore so far this season and now has about 200 tons in transit. It is understood that the company, with headquarters at Eureka Nevada, contemplates the payment of another dividend in the near future as important disclosures in the mine have been reported of late—Salt Lake Mining Review

Local Industry is Rushed with Orders

One of the most thriving and interesting industries in Reno is the Reno Cabinet & Novelty Co., under the management of E. C. Hilsinger. The business employs four skilled cabinet makers who are constantly employed turning out decorative and office furnishings, counters, shelving, etc. The shop is located at the corner of Fourth and Sierra streets, opposite Parry's livery stable

The present equipment consists of jig and band saws, lathes and other wood working machinery, but is inadequate to meet the demand for fine cabinet work and will shortly be augmented by several new and late machines to be operated by electric power. As soon as these are installed the Reno Cabinet & Novelty Co. will be prepared to fill any sized order for high-grade wood work

In addition the company handles a full line of decorative tiling in all colors and designs for mantels, floors, bathrooms, etc.

A visit to their work shop is a revelation to anyone who believes it necessary to send away for ornamental or decorative cabinet work

Next Attraction at the Opera House

The musical comedy, McCarthy's Mishaps," will be the next attraction at the opera house. Barney Ferguson will be on hand to play the role of the unfortunate McCarthy, and he is supported by a full complement of comedians, dancers and pretty girls to round out the grotesque stage pictures

The entertainment opens with McCarthy among the ballet dancers, who make him the victim of a picnic party, and finally land him home after the honey-moon somewhat broken up by his numerous strange misadventures. The cast will include Ferguson and Mack, the funniest of all eccentric comedians, Caron and Herbert, the world's greatest comedy acrobats, Jas. E. Rome and Marguerite Ferguson, Charlotte Ray, Dick Ferguson and Grace Pasmore, the D'Estelle sisters, Misses Fenn and Wheeler, Virginia Logan and a large chorus
